FROM THE PRESIDENT

I look forward to 2009. In September, 2009, RC43 will hold its first conference since 2004 in Toronto. With the housing crisis affecting so many countries, institutions and people, its theme is important and will be timely. Conference chair and local host Ken Gibb provides more information on the conference elsewhere in this newsletter.

It is my hope that you will be able to join us in Glasgow. I also hope that you will join RC43 if you are not already a member and also help us recruit additional members. It would be great to double our membership before the conference.

Finally, welcome to Claudia Macdonald of the Urban Studies Department of the University of Glasgow, who succeeds Anirban Pal as editor of our newsletter. Anirban is now at the Institute of Housing Studies at Erasmus University in Rotterdam, the Netherlands. I thank Anirban for his service and have asked him to join the RC43 board. He is the author of Planning from the Bottom Up: Democratic Decentralisation in Action (Delft University Press), published in Fall, 2008.

Sincerely,

Dennis Keating
President

FROM THE EDITOR

Hello to all ISA RC43 members to this, the first newsletter, of which I am editor. I hope you find the contents interesting and useful, as well as relevant and appropriate. I feel that Anirban has set a very high standard in terms of the variety of content covered in each newsletter, and I hope to reach that standard in the coming year, given a bit more time to get to grips with it all.

I would ask that all members can send me items for consideration for inclusion in July's newsletter as and when possible. In particular, would you please send me information on all:

- conferences
- publications
- news items and any other pieces of information that may be of interest to RC43 group members.

I would also welcome any feedback on the format of the newsletter and would be happy to hear all comments and suggestions relating to that.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT: A WORD FROM KEN GIBB

ISA RC43 International Housing Conference
Theme: Housing Assets, Housing People
Glasgow, 1-4 September 2009

The University of Glasgow's Department of Urban Studies is delighted to be hosting the ISA RC43 international housing conference in Glasgow in September (1-4) 2009. The last global gathering of this housing research community was in Toronto in 2004 and we would like to welcome members and other colleagues from an academic, policy and practice background from all parts of the world. The conference website is:

<http://www.gla.ac.uk/events/housing/>

The main theme or focus is on the nature, impacts and policy responses to the mortgage and housing market problems facing nations, regions and cities in Europe, North America, Asia and indeed throughout the world. The rapid transmission of these problems through mortgage credit and mobile capital raises important questions about the local to global nature of housing as a commodity, and the risks attached to home ownership and residential investment. How do these common issues manifest themselves in specific societies, economies and spaces?

The conference is multi-disciplinary and will be targeted to be of direct interest to academics from across the social sciences, from the policy world and practice. The conference will involve plenary sessions with papers from international experts (including Dan Immergluck, Duncan MacLennan and Yosuke Hirayama), debates, roundtable panels and an extensive set of parallel sessions to which submissions of abstracts for conference papers are welcome across the full range of housing research. The parallel sessions will be grouped together by the organisers but we anticipate parallel sessions relating to themes such as: the sub-prime crisis, the future of housing markets, housing consumption, social housing, housing in Central and Eastern Europe, comparative housing policy, mortgage finance and housing market in developing countries, residential neighbourhoods – and many more.

In addition to the main plenary-workshop structure, the conference will also involve a doctoral session – abstracts from research students are very welcome. There will also be study field trips and a full social programme. The conference already has two special issues of journals lined up and one parallel session will be linked to papers in a new Handbook of Housing Studies (to be published by Sage).

The conference is being supported by a range of partners and many more are anticipated to join us in the months to come. Thus far, the following have offered support to the conference:

- Glasgow city council
- Glasgow housing association

- The Scottish Government
- Scottish Federation of Housing Associations
- Housing Studies Association
- International Sociological Association
- Northern Ireland Housing Executive
- Royal Institution of Chartered Surveyors
- Emerald Publishing

Why come to Glasgow? Apart from the high quality of the academic contributions you will hear and be able to contribute to; in addition to the opportunity to see a city and region that has been major social and physical laboratory of housing and neighbourhood change; and beyond the location of the conference in the iconic Mitchell library complex – this is an opportunity to experience Glasgow: a remarkable, bustling and cosmopolitan city undergoing a post-industrial renaissance and a city that Lonely Planet has placed in the top ten cities in the world http://www.gla.ac.uk/news/headline\_94802\_en.html. You may be sceptical of the hyperbole but be assured that Glasgow is a great social city, full of shopping, restaurants, nightlife and a host of cultural, architectural and sporting opportunities. The University of Glasgow is a great Scottish institution – founded in 1452 and in the top 100 universities of the world. It is the academic home of Adam Smith, Lord Kelvin and John Logie Baird, as well as six Nobel Laureates. <http://www.gla.ac.uk/>

The city is also a great stopping off point for short holidays to visit further afield in Scotland, the Highlands, Edinburgh and beyond are just a few miles from the conference venue. See more information on visiting Glasgow and Scotland at: <http://www.seeglasgow.com/convention-bureau/delegates/notmeeting>.

We plan to send out a general call for participation in the conference in the early new year with full details for registration and submission of papers and abstracts. I look forward to seeing you in Glasgow in September.

NEW BOOKS

Wendell E. Pritchett. 2008. Robert Clifton Weaver and the American City:

The Life and Times of an Urban Reformer.

University of Chicago Press: Chicago and London. 433 pages.

University of Pennsylvania law professor and historian has written a biography of Robert Weaver. Weaver began his rise as one of the few Negro New Dealers, then became a New York State housing bureaucrat overseeing public housing and rent control. He then went on under President John Kennedy to become that administration's leading urban housing policy administrator. Following the creation of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) in 1965 in the administration of President Lyndon Johnson, Weaver became its first Secretary and the first African-American to serve in the President's cabinet. In contrast to the Civil Rights activists of this turbulent period, Weaver worked for the causes of minorities more quietly within the government. The HUD building is named after him.
